Threatened Gramm-Rudman Cuts

Without a budget agreement by Monday, federal spending would be subject to automatic across-the-board cuts under the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law. Here are examples of how the cuts would affect some federal services:

- Health and Human Services
 - Social Security would be cut by 10 percent.
 - Medicare payments out by 2 percent.
- Aviation
 - Federal airports would be cut by 10 percent.
 - Federal airlines would be cut by 10 percent.
- Federal prisons

11th-hour budget talks focus on higher SS tax

From our news service

WASHINGTON — Top leaders of Congress and the Bush administration, trying to avert a 11th-hour shutdown of government services, focused on a Social Security tax increase Saturday as part of a plan to reduce the federal deficit. A capital-gains tax cut appeared dead.

Al Gore said some who have been pushing for a cut in the capital-gains tax had made a deal to raise the Social Security tax. "I would rather postpone the issue until next year, rather than accept any of several unworkable substitutes," he said.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., said the administration was pushing for a cut in the capital-gains tax. "I am not sure that is the best way to deal with the deficit," he said.

But the official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the negotiators were discussing "all sorts of alternatives," including indexing to protect people from being taxed on gains that simply reflect inflation.

"It all depends on what they get for it," he said.

A capital-gains cut apparently fell victim to a Democratic effort to portray the reduction as a windfall for the rich. About 80 percent of the benefit of a tax cut on capital gains, which are investment profits, would go to those with incomes over $100,000 a year.

The dispute over capital gains and income taxes has been one of the main ideological battlegrounds between Republicans and Democrats since the start of the Bush administration. The president has repeatedly insisted that a capital gains tax cut would stimulate growth. Democrats have insisted that raising the top income tax rate would help reverse a Reagan-era shift of the tax burden, placing it more on the wealthy than the middle class.

Negotiators were optimistic they would be able to agree on a plan of targeted spending cuts and tax increases that would bring the largest deficit reductions in history. $50 billion in the budget year that begins Monday and another $50 billion over the following five years.

"It may take until early tomorrow morning," House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., told reporters as the Saturday talks began. "I'm getting quite optimistic about it."

However, some members of the Democratic rank-and-file are so unhappy with the tax package that they may oppose it. "This is the biggest set of regressive taxes I have ever seen," said Rep. Brian Donnelly, Democrat of Boston, who is leaning against the package because of the taxes increases and Medicare cutbacks. "It hits poor and middle-income people the hardest. Capital gains has obscured the whole thing."

Child summit draws leaders from 70 lands

UNITED NATIONS — More than 70 of the world's prime ministers gathered Saturday at the United Nations for a summit to discuss the scourges of children's case, war, poverty, and disease.

The World Summit is the largest gathering of world leaders in the event, more than 100 heads of state and government, had no idea of the golden opportunity that would be theirs.

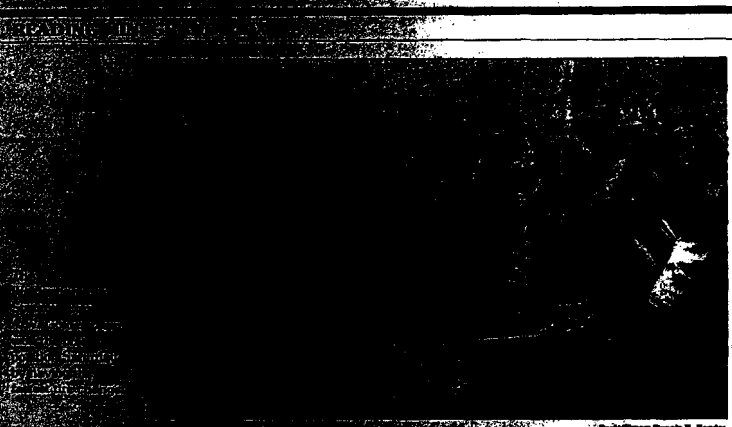

Summit was scheduled for Saturday. But the United Nations learned U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez Cuellar was unable to sign a declaration on children's rights without the presence of the U.N. Secretary-General.

The summit, scheduled for Saturday, was launched by the international community, that it is the United Nations children at the top of their agenda, both domestic and international, 7 said Canadian Ambassador Yves Fortin, one of the organizers of the summit.

"It is not Monday morning at 9 o'clock that you will be able to say, 'The summit has been a success,'" said Fortin, but the summit "sends a message to the world: it serves as a catalyst to mobilize public opinion."

Bush arrived Saturday with a plan to combat terrorism, poise, and other childhood diseases and AIDS among American children.

Iraqi appeals to king

Associated Press

Iraq's foreign minister made a surprise appearance in Jordan on Saturday, giving rise to speculation that Saddam Hussein might be seeking to circumvent the economic embargo or open new diplomatic maneuvers.

Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz visited Amman, meeting with King Hussein and then returning to Baghdad.

President Bush, meanwhile, sought to solidify the international condemnation of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait in a series of meetings with other world leaders in New York beginning Saturday.

In the Gulf region, the multinational force took on a more multinational character. Britain launched a deployment that was to include thousands of ground troops, Egyptian reinforcements were on their way, and the first French Foreign Legionnaires arrived in Saudi Arabia.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze said Saturday the Soviet Union also would be willing to send troops into military action in the Persian Gulf if it is sanctioned by the United Nations.

"We will comply with any decision, with any resolution of the Security Council... and that would include anything regarding the involvement of the Soviet troops under the flag, under the auspices of the United Nations," he said in a taped interview for broadcast today on NBC News.

France warned Saturday it would retaliate if it turns out Iraq was behind a grenade attack that killed a French child and injured 17 people Thursday night in Djibouti. The small Red Sea country provides support bases for French forces deployed in the Gulf region.

If Iraq is found responsible, Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said, "there will be a response from France and you better believe it — it will be appropriate to the hateful nature of this attack."

Belgian Foreign Minister Mark Eyskens said Saturday most European Community embassies in Kuwait City, including Belgium's, will probably close next week because the situation is becoming unbearable. The Iraqis have cut off water and energy supplies to the embassies.

Fuel oil dealers taking heat

By Pamela Rohland
Daily Times

The venerable Farmer's Almanac is predicting a cold and snowy winter, and the wrothy caterpillars, with their black coats, agree.

But no one can forecast what events are going to unfold in the Middle East during the next few months or how those circumstances will affect the price and supply of home heating oil.

The only thing anyone can say for sure is that the situation is a crap shoot, and nobody — including local heating oil dealers, who have borne the brunt of public wrath — is too happy about it.

"We with the United States could get rid of the man over there (Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein).

and things would get back to normal," said Alan N. Spachner, president of the Berks County Executive Council and the owner of Berneville Quality Fuel Inc., 330 Blair Ave.

On July 28, before Hussein invaded Kuwait, Pennsylvania was paying about 61 cents for a gallon of home heating oil, according to the Pennsylvania Energy Office in Harrisburg. Today, they're selling out about $1.12.

Last year in September the average price of home heating oil statewide was 77 cents per gallon, and in September last the cost was 73 cents, the agency reported. An informal survey by the heating oil at 79 cents a gallon, while those at Reading Merchants Oil Co., 34 S. Fourth St., could probably winter oil at a $5 to $6 cents a gallon.

William H. Fehr, chief executive officer at Berks Products Corp., 726 Spring St., said the company gives a two-cent discount to customers who pay within 10 days, a one-cent discount for automatic delivery, and a one-cent discount to customers who pre-pay.

Berks Products also has an incentive program which would allow current customers and new customers to lock in their oil prices at $1.09.

To give consumers a break on their bills, some dealers offered special rates through the summer. Customers at Berneville Quality Fuel were able to pre-purchase

Business resumes at FR&S

From our news staff

Business was less than brisk today as the FR&S Sanitary Landfill Inc. closed since 1985, reopened after securing an operating permit from the state Department of Environmental Resources.

"So far, we've had four trucks since we opened at 8 a.m.," a landfill spokesman said shortly before 10 a.m. "But we expect business to pick up as the day goes along."

Later last week, President N. Mansour, owner of the landfill, said that the company had received a permit from the state Department of Environmental Resources to operate the landfill.

The landfill is located on the site of the former FR&S Sanitary Landfill, which was closed in 1985 after a federal court order forced the company to shut down operations.

The landfill is owned by N. Mansour, who is a partner in the company. The company has been operating the landfill since 1985, when it was first opened.

Bush faces hard sell on budget

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush and key lawmakers avoided a crash at the new fiscal year dawn today as they now must convince a reluctant year Congress to vote for $134 billion in new taxes and widespread cuts in federal programs.

"It's going to be very difficult for us," House Republican Leader John Dingell of Michigan said today. Bush's House Chief of Staff John Boehner said President Bush would lobby hard and, "I think in the long run it will be supported by a majority of Republicans."

"It's a tough sell," said Rep. Jim Tuck, R-Iowa, one of many lawmakers who was troubled by what he was hearing of the package Sunday.

Democrats, too, were expected to swallow hard before agreeing to raising Medicare premiums while cutting the benefits, increasing taxes on gasoline, alcohol, and cigarettes, and trimming everything from defense to student loans.

And despite a claimed $500 billion in deficit reduction, it would stretch out the goal of a balanced budget and let the national debt increase another $1 trillion.

The $40 billion in deficit reduction for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 would still leave a record annual deficit of $254 billion.

Following Bush's announcement of the budget accord at the White House Rose Garden on Sunday, the House and Senate easily approved and sent to Bush legislation avoiding a government shutdown which was threatened for today.

White House Press Secretary Martin Fitzwater said the stopgap resolution, which keeps the government going for five more days.

Budget deal would give big breaks to small businesses.

While more work is done on the budget, would be signed by Bush this afternoon.

Because of the delays in enacting the fiscal 1991 budget, the new fiscal year was starting without any of the normal spending bills required by law for government operations.

But while the stopgap bill was approved easily, the votes in no way were endorsements for the budget agreement.

Michel, appearing on NBC's "Today" show, said he wouldn't be surprised if the budget package failed to pass its first test votes later this week.

"This is not going to be easy for everyone, but it is necessary," House Speaker Thomas S. Foley said on the same program.

Sensu, who appeared on ABC-TV, said the president would "support it aggressively."

"Nip-pickers may have a field day, because the easy vote in this case is to find something you don't like and vote no," Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said Sunday.

Many on both sides seem ready to do just that.

"I don't think it's a compromise," said Rep. Dana Rohrabacher, R-Calif. "I think it's totally caving in to the Democratic liberals ... that's going to tax us right into a recession."

"It looks like a tax on people who are hurting the most — excuse taxes," said Rep. Charles Rangel.

Saddam orders release of nine

Associated Press

Iraq today ordered the release of nine French nationals in its second conciliatory gesture toward France in as many days.

On Sunday, Saddam Hussein urged an international dialogue and mentioned France as a possible partner. French and British officials rejected the offer, saying they wouldn't talk until Iraq withdraws from Kuwait.

The nations allied against Iraq, meanwhile, were laying the groundwork for possible military action.

U.S. and Soviet officials were reported Sunday to be drafting new U.N. resolutions that would authorize the use of force against Iraq if the U.N.-ordered economic blockade fails to force Saddam out of Kuwait.

Bush turns up heat on Saddam with U.N. speech.

President Bush was to address the U.N. General Assembly in New York today. Brent Scowcroft, his national security adviser, said Friday that U.S. officials are considering asking U.N. authorization for military action.

U.S. officials have told the Associated Press that the Soviet Union wants a joint military command for such a force, while Washington prefers more "logistical" leeway.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is expected to call for a similar force.

Young readers get their own Mini Page

The Mini Page begins today in the Reading Eagle and will appear every Monday. Created by Betty Debnam, a former elementary schoolteacher, The Mini Page is a four-page, syndicated tabloid-size newspaper insert designed to be fun and interesting to children ages 8 to 12. It is intended to be used not only by children but also as an educational tool for parents and teachers.

Each week, The Mini Page features a different theme that is carried out on the front and back pages of the tabloid. This design allows teachers to use the cover as a bulletin board poster if they wish. Facts, puzzles, and stories relating to the theme help children learn in a fun way.

Themes may range from desert wildlife to dinosaurs, from drug abuse and crime prevention to the origin of St. Valentine's Day. The theme of our first two issues is Saudi Arabia, a country in the news today. Debnam visited Saudi Arabia in preparation for this publication. She believes that since The Mini Page is intended to be used as an educational and learning tool, she must be accurate in providing correct information.

Debnam conducts an annual survey of readers and teachers to get ideas for subject matter. She also keeps up with the news and tries to keep abreast of what interests children.

The Mini Page is a part of the Newspaper in Education program of Reading Eagle Company. For more information on using the newspaper as an educational tool, call Linda Miskiewicz, NIE coordinator, at 271-5008.

Hijacked jet crashes; 120 die

From our news services

HONG KONG — At least 120 people were killed today when a hijacked Chinese Boeing 737 smashed into two parked aircraft as it tried to land in the southern city of Canton after a bomb blast on board, officials said.

An official at White Cloud Airport in Canton, contacted from Hong Kong, said: "A total of 120 people died and another 100 or so survived."

The Boeing 737 was hijacked after it left the southeastern port city of Xiamen for the 70-minute flight to Canton. A U.S. consular official in Canton said a bomb exploded as the plane tried to land.

"When it hit, the 737 exploded in a fireball," the consular official said.

The airliner hit an empty Boeing 707 and then smashed into a parked Boeing 737 which was loaded with passengers waiting for Shanghai.

One witness spoke of bodies strewn across the tarmac of the airport and television pictures showed the charred wreckage of the hijacked Boeing 737 and a second aircraft, a Boeing 767, smashed in two.

Chinese officials said the Boeing 737 was operated by Xiamen Airways — part of the national carrier Civil Aviation Administration of China. The Boeing 767 belonged to CAAC. Airport officials said Chinese, Taiwanese, and Hong Kong Chinese were among those aboard the two aircraft.

At least two Americans were on the hijacked plane. U.S. Embassy spokesman Sheridan Bell said.

Erin Lynne Thomas of Oklahoma City, Okla., was hospitalized in good shape with a broken limb, he said. She reported that a second American woman had been sitting next to her, but Bell said the second woman was missing.

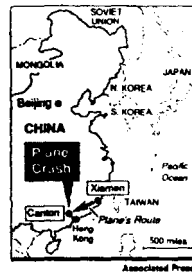

Aviation industry sources in Hong Kong said two hijackers were involved. The British territory's TV television channel quoted a Canton airport official as saying a hijacker demanded that the aircraft be flown to Hong Kong.

The crew refused and after a struggle the aircraft crashed. The report could not immediately be confirmed.

"I saw two separate fireballs and then a huge black column of smoke," said a woman living near the airport. "There were many ambulances and fire trucks."

Allies clear way for one Germany

Associated Press

WEST GERMANY — The allies have agreed to clear the way for a single German state, but the decision is far from final, officials said today.

The decision, which was made by the four big powers — the United States, Great Britain, France and the Soviet Union — was a significant step toward the goal of a unified Germany.

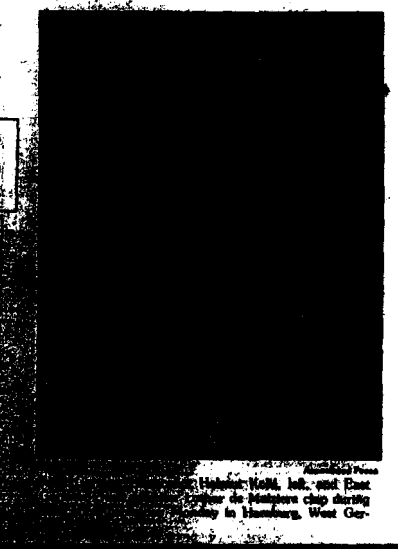

The decision was made in a meeting in London, where the four powers discussed the future of Germany and the role of the United Nations.

The decision was a clear signal that the allies were ready to move forward with the process of German reunification.

The decision was a major victory for the German people, who have long dreamed of a unified Germany.

The decision was a clear statement of the allies' commitment to the German people and to the goal of a unified Germany.

Bush considers TV budget pitch

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush says he'd consider going on television to ask the public to accept the $50 billion deficit-cutting plan, a boost congressional leaders may need to win enough support from worried lawmakers.

Bush and leaders of the House and Senate continue searching for votes today for the package, which was unveiled Sunday. In its two-day life span, the plan has drawn barbs from lawmakers.

Democrats and Republicans, wary of voting for a record amount of tax increases and spending cuts in an election year.

"Everybody knew this deficit-reduction agreement was an ugly duckling," said Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee.

"Nobody expected it to sprout wings and fly like a swan."

But Bush put an optimistic face on prospects of approval. "It will all work out. Everybody will do what's right," he told reporters.

Congressional leaders planned a series of votes over the next three weeks to elicit the compromise plan into law. But reluctance to support the package comes from members of both parties.

Republicans are leery of its $134 billion in new taxes on gasoline, alcohol, tobacco, airline tickets, incomes of the wealthy, and other items. They also complained that defense cuts of up to $12 billion were too deep and that domestic programs were not pared enough.

Numerous Democrats don't like the $165 billion in spending reductions for benefit programs such as Medicare and the fact that many of the taxes — such as those on gasoline and alcohol — take a daily bite out of poor peoples' incomes.

And lawmakers of both parties face an uphill battle to pass the package from cold-warrior states are furious over the inclusion of a tax on home heating oil.

SAUDI ARABIA — The allied forces are in defensive positions to protect against an Iraqi invasion of Saudi Arabia, officials said today.

The buildup of recent weeks is concentrated in areas inland from the Persian Gulf and in a crescent around Kuwait.

The Iraqi also were said to have reinforced their defenses along the supply line from the southern Iraqi city of Basra into Kuwait. The highway runs about 30 miles to the border and another 50 miles to Kuwait City.

U.S. and Saudi officials have stressed that the allied forces are in defensive positions to protect against an Iraqi invasion of Saudi Arabia.

But many analysts have discounted the possibility of an invasion in view of the buildup of U.S. troops, now around 100,000, in the kingdom.

In other developments: More Egyptian soldiers were headed to Saudi Arabia today. Two ships passed through the Suez Canal headed for the Saudi Red Sea port of Yanbu. Canal officials said they carried troops and military hardware but gave no details.

At the United Nations, Iraq repeatedly postponed its bid to the General Assembly on Monday just hours after President Bush hinted that an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait could help resolve Arab-Israeli tensions.

Bandit escapes with cash from Bank of Pa. branch

From our news staff

A bandit escaped with an undetermined amount of cash from the Bank of Pennsylvania branch at 50-N. Fifth St. about 10:30 this morning after handing a teller a note demanding $1,000.

Investigators said the robber entered the bank through a door at Fifth and Washington streets and approached a female teller with a knife.

The suspect was described as a white man, 5 feet, 8 inches tall and about 140 pounds, 25 to 30 years old, with dark, wavy hair, wearing a dark jacket and a dark shirt.

After the teller gave him the cash, the man ran out and headed north on Fifth Street. In the meantime, an alarm was activated. The bank was closed after the robbery and investigators said it would remain closed for most of this afternoon.

FBI agents were en route late this morning to take charge of the investigation.
